Co-Existing with Coyotes

STANLEY PARK ECOLOGY SOCIETY

With a few simple actions, we can help reduce conflicts between people, pets and coyotes.

Coyotes are well adapted to living in cities. They are naturally wary but if they become too comfortable with people, they may act aggressively.

If you see a coyote
Be Big, Brave and Loud
• Stand tall with arms overhead
• Yell “Go away coyote”
• Stand your ground and never run

Never feed coyotes
Fed coyotes can become aggressive
• Seal garbage and compost securely
• Remove ripe garden veggies and fruit
• Store pet food and feed pets indoors

Pet safety
• Keep cats indoors, especially at night
• Leash dogs and supervise closely
• Never let dogs interact with coyotes
• Pick up small dogs if coyotes approach
